8. Here are my comments on what I LIKE about Summon:

- Fast, easy
- This tool is an extremely beneficial search engine which is relatively easy to learn and navigate
- Amount of databases I can search at once
- Easy to find on MSSU website
- Ability to click on so many filters cuts finding resources time in half
- I like that the school provides it
- The folder to save articles and email bibliography
- I can search all types of materials in one location
- It is not too difficult to comprehend and you can teach yourself
- I like the way it is built around a search box just like other search engines

9. Here are my comments on what I DISLIKE about Summon:

- Summon would not always work on certain browsers and some of the articles I would try to pull up would not always work
- I dislike that you have to click a box to build off of your last search. I don’t know why but I figured that would be the default
- Even when narrowing searches, information received can still be difficult to locate in many instances and in a very broad amount
- Sometimes it is hard to know which search terms to use
- A lot of book reviews come up, even if you omit them
- I think there should be more professors willing to explain the use of Summon, along with putting it into practical use
- I had to dig a little deeper by going directly to Article search engines because Summon didn’t yield as much
- Sometimes it confuses me on all the things you can do to search for something
- Brings up books that don’t have the full text
